1855 Masterclass: Our Right to Access

Date and Time: Wednesday, November 18 4:00 pm - 5:30 pm

Address: Webinar

In partnership with Durham Region Economic Development, join us on November 18 at 4 PM as we close the 2020 season of 1855 MASTERCLASS for a gritty virtual fireside conversation with Denise Williams, CEO, First Nations Technology Council, in an exclusive presentation of “Your Right to Access”- a discussion on Indigenous leadership in a digitally reliant and troubled time. Never have we been so called by humanity, to come together and awaken to the destruction our systems are causing- that we have been blindly building for decades. We may be emerging upon a greater awareness of our own fragility in economic, social and environmental systems that we do not control, that we cannot predict, and that will never be status quo again. In the spirit of strengthening community, this discussion will invite us to explore Indigenous wisdom and ways of “being”, that are key to how we live today, as we innovate forward. We will be encouraged to step up and live in right relation, as Indigenous peoples have for thousands of years on the land you walk today.

Rounding out the evening, we also bring you JUNO Award-winning Canadian singer-songwriter Chantal Kreviazuk, delivering a special musical performance for our guests. This is an event you DO NOT want to miss. A Q &A will follow.

Registration is free and all are welcome.
